Australian Financial Complaints Authority

In 2016, the Government announced a review of the complaints handling framework, known as the Ramsay Review. The purpose of the Review was to ensure that the three existing External Dispute Resolution (EDR) bodies, the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS), the Credit and Investments Ombudsman (CIO) and the Superannuation Complaints Tribunal (SCT), were working as effectively as possible to deliver the best possible outcomes for consumers and small businesses. One major outcome of the Review was the recommendation of the establishment of a single EDR body to replace the FOS, the CIO and the SCT. The body is to be known as the Australian Financial Complaints Authority (AFCA).
